- Helen: Look at you, Anne, how tan you are! Did you have a good vacation?
Anne: Yes, it was great.
Helen: You went to Greece, didn't you?
Anne: Yes. We spent ten days visiting some of the islands and then we spent three days in Athens.
Helen: Athens! What was that like?
Anne: Actually it was very good. We stayed in a very luxurious hotel in a quiet street near the center. It had the most spectacular view of the Acropolis. I could lie in my bed at night and see it all lit up. It was wonderful.
Helen: What was the food like?
Anne: It was delicious. We were staying in Plaka – that's the famous part that most tourists visit – and there were so many restaurants to choose from that we tried somewhere new for every meal. We didn't have even one bad experience. My favorite was a seafood place and I had the most incredible fish.
Helen: I've heard that it's not as safe there as it used to be. Is that true?
Anne: Nothing bad happened to us so I can't really say. Everybody was very friendly and it felt very safe. Maybe because we saw a lot of police around the city.
Helen: Apart from eating, what else did you do?
Anne: We went up to the Acropolis, of course, although it was hot, and then we went to the Acropolis Museum. It's only been open for a few years and it was fascinating. We also went shopping. I bought a lot of things: some shoes and a beautiful leather bag, some pretty painted coffee cups for my family, a big box of tasty honey candy for my grandfather, and earrings for my sisters.
Helen: You sound like that was the best part!
Anne: I enjoyed the whole trip but my favorite part was lying on the beach, sunbathing and swimming. The water is very warm and the most amazing blue color. When you see the postcards, you think that the water can't really be that color, but it is. You should go next year, you'd love it. I'll send you the name of the hotel – it was excellent.
Helen: Maybe I will!
